PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Welcome to beautiful Vancouver, North America's gateway to the East. As a hometown girl, I am thrilled to be in the stunning city that I grew up in and still call home and am honored (or as we spell it here, honoured) that you're joining us for IAGA's 34th International Gaming Summit.

As the gaming industry's premier event that brings together leaders from all sectors of the industry, the Summit provides gaming operators, suppliers, attorneys, investors, bankers, regulators and other advisors with an unparalleled opportunity to meet and discuss the top issues and challenges facing gaming today. Our compelling panel and roundtable discussions presented by industry thought leaders and our unmatched networking events provide you, our delegates, with exceptional learning opportunities combined with relaxed interactions with your global colleagues.

Centered around our theme, "From East to West: the Changing Global Gaming Landscape," this year's program focuses on many of the top issues facing our industry, highlighting key topics that cross jurisdictional boundaries and demand the attention of gaming executives worldwide. It is my sincere hope that through your participation in this year's Summit, you will both expand your understanding of these key issues and simultaneously grow your relationships with industry colleagues enabling you to meet the challenges you uniquely face.

I'd like to thank Gaming Laboratories International (GLI) and the National Center for Responsible Gaming (NCRG) for their support of this year's Summit. The GLI and NCRG workshops are perfect examples of how IAGA is continually evolving to provide dynamic thought leadership to the gaming industry.

Throughout the years, my engagement in IAGA – as a member, trustee, officer and now President – has been a keystone of my career as a gaming attorney. I've forged relationships that have only been possible because of IAGA. As our industry becomes more complex and more international, knowledge and relationships become only more important and I encourage you to take advantage of everything IAGA offers and be more involved in our ongoing initiatives. Since we were founded in 1980, IAGA has consistently provided industry executives with a wide range of networking and educational programs and we couldn't do this without the involvement of our members or the ongoing financial support of our generous sponsors. If you'd like to get more involved, please reach out to me, my fellow officers, or our Executive Director and join us in our efforts to support our exciting industry through future IAGA events around the globe.

Enjoy your time in Vancouver and I look forward to seeing you at our next IAGA event!

ABOUT IAGA

Originally established as the National Association of Gaming Attorneys (NAGA), IAGA was founded in 1980 Nevada by several notable gaming attorneys including A.J. "Bud" Hicks, Frank Schreck, Robert Faiss, Frank Fahrenkopf and Mike Sloan. The organization's goal was to create a professional association of gaming industry attorneys "to unite in common organization those professionally engaged in the gaming industry, to facilitate negotiations in the gaming industry and protect and promote the mutual interests of the corporation's members and to promote and encourage education in the gaming industry."

The association soon drew the attention of gaming attorneys beyond Nevada who likewise wanted to support a forum where industry legal issues could be addressed, and NAGA's membership quickly grew to include attorneys not only from the United States but also from the United Kingdom, France and other international areas where gaming was legally regulated. As a result, and to recognize the organization's growing international membership, in 1985 NAGA evolved into the International Association of Gaming Attorneys (IAGA) and held its first international conference in Monte Carlo.

As the organization's annual conferences expanded beyond Europe to Australia, Canada and the Caribbean reflecting the globalization of the gaming industry and the increased international representation of its membership, the issues and strategies considered by IAGA began to require more than just legal expertise. As such, the organization's educational and networking events actively began including professionals from the gaming industry's financial and operational segments. And, to better reflect the expanded focus of the topics being addressed, in 2007 IAGA's name was changed to the International Association of Gaming Advisors, and its membership has since expanded to include not just gaming attorneys, but a wide range of industry financial experts, casino executives, regulators, consultants and educators from around the world.

Together, the industry experts that make up IAGA today meet throughout the year to discuss the key issues affecting global gaming. The organization and its members also actively participate in a wide range of activities focused on expanding the expertise and professionalism of the gaming industry, and encourage ongoing collaboration between the industry's legal, finance, operational, educational and regulatory advisors. As such, our members are regularly engaged in shaping the future of the industry and, through our conferences and collaborative opportunities, all members gain access to the collective heartbeat of the business.

LIFETIME ACHIEVEMENT AWARD

Jenny Williams, Commissioner and Chief Executive of the United Kingdom Gambling Commission, has had a distinguished civil service career that spans not just the UK gaming industry but includes roles related to rail and water regulation and privatization, local government finance, public sector housing management, business tax and tackling urban deprivation. As recipient of the 2015 IAGA Lifetime Achievement award, we recognize her significant contributions to the United Kingdom's gambling industry and in particular her leadership in guiding the country through an unprecedented period of growth and modernization.

Previously a Director General at the Lord Chancellor's Department, Ms. Williams joined the Gaming Board of Great Britain in 2004 to establish the Gambling Commission under the 2005 Gambling Act and develop all the licensing processes and associated licence conditions and codes of practice. Under her direction, the Commission assumed responsibility for all betting, gaming machine arcades and for remote gambling, growing to include over 250 staff and oversight of approximately 3,000 licensees while gaining prosecution and more extensive regulatory powers. The Commission's remit further expanded in 2014 when the National Lottery Commission merged into the Gambling Commission and again in 2014 when the 2005 Gambling Act was revised to require all overseas operators selling or advertising gambling to those in Britain to hold a Commission licence. Under her guidance, the Commission now regulates virtually all commercial gambling and lotteries in Great Britain. Ms. Williams is also a Trustee of the International Association of Gaming Regulators (IAGR) and Chair of its eGaming working party.

Ms. Williams has a Cambridge economics degree, worked in Zambia as an economist, and did postgraduate studies at Nuffield College, Oxford. The Vice Chair of homelessness charity the Connection at St. Martins, she and her husband have three grown sons.

The LIFETIME ACHIEVEMENT AWARD was created to recognize individuals who have made an exceptional contribution to the world of gaming. The award is not limited by jurisdiction, sector or profession, nor is it restricted to members of IAGA. Additionally, it is not automatically awarded each year; the special nature of this award and the honor attached to it is preserved by awarding it only in years when IAGA identifies an individual who has made the appropriate contribution which is recognized internationally.

9:15 – 10:15 a.m. Online Gaming Regulation: What Have We Learned & Where Are We Going?

With over a decade of experience regulating gambling on the Internet, we have learned some important lessons about how to manage the intersection of traditional gambling behavior and modern preferences for the use of technology. However, as the regulatory environment in the U.S. is still emerging, we await the outcome of whether the U.S. will try to comport with the existing global regulatory policies or whether it will try to retrofit online gaming into its existing regulatory structures. The panels will discuss the pros and cons of each approach and its potential impact on global markets.

Moderator: Kevin Mullally, Vice President of Government Relations & General Counsel, GLI

Panel: Michael Cohen, Senior Vice President, Corporate Development, General Counsel and Corporate Secretary, Caesars Acquisition Company

10:30 – 11:30 a.m. Regulating Automated Raffles

The sale of raffle tickets at sporting events and fundraisers is increasingly moving from the use of traditional paper tickets to sophisticated electronic sales channels. Using wireless handheld devices and kiosks for ticket printing, connected to back-office servers for storing and analyzing data, these systems provide real-time information to customers about pool sizes while allowing draw organizers more control over sales processes. Automation of these systems has enabled single event prize in six figures, thus changing the risk profile for this delivery channel. This session focuses on the unique features of electronic raffle systems and how the risks of their operation can be effectively mitigated through proven testing and auditing practices.

Casinos stand at the forefront of regulator efforts targeting illicit proceeds that may enter the financial system. As customers find complex ways to channel funds both to and from casinos, the need for robust AML compliance programs continues to rise. While most gaming operators have installed the basic framework for their AML compliance program, new risks can arise when new services or technology are introduced or as markets change. This panel will discuss processes to ensure AML compliance programs are periodically reviewed and updated and training is available to mitigate new risks and emerging patterns of illegal activity. It will also explore issues that should be considered by operators and regulators when developing policies relating to risk profiles for customers, performing risk assessments, monitoring suspicious activity, and tuning the organization's risk model to trends in the market.

The Importance of Responsible Gambling in Achieving a (Social) License to Operate

Does your CSR strategy make sense for your business? This session will explore the value of embedding CSR and responsible gambling into business practice and the strategic link between responsibility and business growth to achieve a sustainable business.

Moderator: Jenny Williams, CEO & Commissioner, Gambling Commission of Great Britain
Panel: Kahlil Philander, Ph.D., Director of Social Responsibility, British Columbia Lotteries Corporation (BCLC)
 Michaela Becker, Manager, CSR and Responsible Gambling Training and Compliance, British Columbia Lotteries Corporation (BCLC)

10:15 - 11:15 a.m.

Self-Exclusion: An Evolving Idea

The original voluntary self-exclusion programs often used the threat of prosecution for trespassing on the gaming property to dissuade enrolled gamblers from violating their self-exclusion agreement. However, research suggests that this approach might be counterproductive, and that a more therapeutic approach might be warranted. This session will look at self-exclusion from several perspectives: a healthcare provider who sees clients with gambling problems; a researcher who has studied the safety and effectiveness of self-exclusion in Canada; a legal advisor to the Macau Gaming Inspection and Coordination Bureau; and a gaming regulator whose jurisdiction operates self-exclusion programs for customers of both land-based casinos and online gambling. The panel will address how to improve self-exclusion programs and how regulatory bodies can provide researchers with access to self-exclusion databases.

Responsible Gaming in New Jurisdictions

Elected officials and regulators face great challenges in designing regulations aimed at reducing gambling-related harms and protecting vulnerable populations. Political pressures and fears about crime and the impact of gambling on the community often drive responsible gaming regulations and practices. This session will offer an international view of how new jurisdictions can use science to make decisions about the development and implementation of responsible gaming regulations.

TUESDAY, JUNE 2

12:45 – 1:45 p.m.

Lunch & Keynote Address

Bo Bernhard, Ph.D., Executive Director, UNLV International Gaming Institute

1:45 – 3 p.m.

Understanding Positive Play: An Exploration of Playing Experiences and Responsible Gambling Practice

Responsible gaming policies and regulations are often developed on the basis of what we think we know about disordered gamblers. However, a new study exploring in detail the behaviors, attitudes and motivations of players that show no signs of at-risk or problem gambling behavior (so-called ‘positive players’) has many implications for how we design responsible gaming programs. For example, this research suggests that more traditional ‘stick-based approaches’ (i.e., ‘do not do this or you could develop a gambling problem’) might not be productive.

Moderator: Christine Reilly, Senior Research Director, National Center for Responsible Gambling (NCRG)

Panel: Richard Wood, Ph.D., GamRes Ltd

Dirk Hansen, Chief Executive, Gamcare UK

Martha Otton, Chief Strategy Officer, Alcohol and Gaming Commission of Ontario

3 – 4:15 p.m.

Pre-Commitment: What the Evidence Says

Pre-commitment strategies are programs that enable a player to set limits on proposed gambling expenditures in terms of time and money prior to the commencement of a session of gambling. There is widespread interest in this concept. However, a review of 18 studies examining pre-commitment found a low usage rate and little evidence that this approach is either safe or effective. This session will look at the research on pre-commitment as well as the real-world experience of operators with this program.

Moderator: Connie Jones, Director of Compliance, Association of Gaming Equipment Manufacturers (AGEM)

Panel: Robert Ladouceur, Ph.D., Emeritus Professor, Laval University

Ross Ferrar, CEO, Gaming Technologies Association

Stephen Crosby, Chairman, Massachusetts Gaming Commission

Lindsay Wadden, Vice President Gaming Operations, Nova Scotia Provincial Lotteries and Casino Corporation

Greenberg Traurig Welcomes Emily Mattison to its Global Gaming Practice

As former Illinois Gaming Board general counsel, Emily provides our clients with unique regulatory insight. She has been involved in the licensure and discipline of licensees, law enforcement investigations, prosecutions and seizure of illegal gaming devices. She guided the regulatory approach to an expanding gaming industry in Illinois, drafting practical policies and rules amid shifting legislative constraints. She leverages her prior experience in the Illinois Governor's Office as liaison for ten State agencies, providing advice on state and federal law, policy, regulation, and contract interpretation.

Emily's perspective joins those of the more than 40 attorneys at Greenberg Traurig with diverse backgrounds and practice areas yet uniformly committed to the global gaming industry. Together, we're helping clients in an increasingly complex and competitive global marketplace to see things differently.
